ABOUT

Christopher Hudson is a global HR executive, speaker, and creator of two original frameworks — The Cultural Microsphere™ and the Human Readiness Model — built on a singular belief that culture and people readiness determine whether AI adoption succeeds or fails.

With over 20 years leading HR, IT, and business operations across global organizations, Christopher has guided teams through AI transformation, M&A, private equity transitions, and rapid growth. That experience is what grounds his perspective. Today, Christopher focuses on the intersection of AI, organizational culture, and workforce readiness. His talks help leaders understand what it actually takes to prepare people for AI, focusing on the capability, confidence, and judgment that determine how well those tools get used. He gives audiences a framework for thinking about AI adoption that goes beyond technology, and something concrete they can act on when they get back to work.
